Innovative finance mechanisms: Tools for unlocking capital for climate and nature – what is working?

Panel

Blended finance promises to mobilise private capital into impactful sectors. In this session, practitioners and policymakers will critically examine the effectiveness of innovative finance structures, and explore how policy, public finance tools and regulation can unlock scalable, investable structures.

Hear what's working, what's emerging, and what needs to change to better align public and private interests.

Moderator: Alex Shadbolt, Investment Manager and Impact Lead, Future Planet Capital
Stefanie Fairholme, Managing Director and Chief Investment Officer, Capital Solutions, British International Investment
Beverley Gower-Jones OBE, Managing Partner, Clean Growth Fund
Sandy MacDonald, Executive Director of Impact, The Scottish National Investment Bank
Georgina Thomas, Head of Impact, Cibus Capital

11:50

Do GPs and LPs mean the same thing when they say 'Impact'... and does it matter?

Panel

"Impact" is used across private capital, but do GPs and LPs interpret it the same way? This panel will unpack how impact is defined, measured and applied in practice. We'll explore why clarity matters for capital deployment, reporting and long-term trust, and how shared language – or deliberate divergence – can shape the future of sustainable investing.

Moderator: Maggie Loo, Partner, Bridges Fund Management
Sofia Bartholdy, Responsible Investment Integration Director, Church Commissioners
Ravi Bhatt, Director and Head of Responsible Investment (ESG/ Impact), Apis Partners
Alex Shadbolt, Investment Manager and Impact Lead, Future Planet Capital
Caroline Truong, Impact & ESG Manager, Lightrock

Pitching value creation in the Dragon's Den Panel

Four firms will pitch their value creation story that's truly material to their business. Using participant questions to shape the discussion, the panel will explore how they think about value, the frameworks they use, what's material across portfolios, how value is measured and how this is communicated to their investors.

Moderator: Michelle Lamprecht, Head of Corporate Affairs, Cambridge Innovation Capital

Marco Bartholdy, Sustainability Director, CVC

Alex Bexon, Director, ESG – Value Creation Partners, LDC

Owen Lewis, CEO, Cambridge GaN Devices

Emily Matthews, Responsible Investment & ESG Manager, Oxford Science Enterprises

Masterclass 1 - Stream 1

Communicating sustainability performance and value creation Sponsored by Novata

Sustainability only creates value when it's measurable. In this masterclass, led by Novata, attendees will learn a practical five-step framework to turn sustainability strategy and metrics into strategic outcomes and financial performance. Move beyond reporting and build a clear, defensible value creation narrative grounded in high-quality data.

Laura Callaghan, Head of Advisory, EMEA, Novata

Laurie Cameron, Director of Sustainability, PAI Partners

Demystifying FINZ for private equity: From misconceptions to implementation

As private equity firms face growing expectations to align with net-zero, many are grappling with how the SBTi's Financial Institutions Net Zero Standard (FINZ) applies in practice. This interactive masterclass cuts through common misconceptions and focuses on what FINZ actually requires and where flexibility exists for private capital.

Using live polling and real-world scenarios, participants will explore key questions around portfolio coverage, data limitations, investment horizons, and influence over portfolio companies. The session will surface how FINZ is being interpreted across the market and provide clear, practical guidance on how private equity firms can move from ambition to credible, science-based action.

Designed for investment and sustainability professionals, this session offers a candid, practitioner focused discussion on how to operationalize net zero commitments in a private markets context without oversimplifying the challenges or overstating the constraints.

Marco Swan, Financial Institutions Engagement Manager, SBTi

Masterclass 2 - Stream 1

The intersection of defence investing and responsible capital allocation

As UK national security priorities evolve, the defence sector is increasingly drawing the attention of private capital. Yet, this shift is raising critical questions for investors committed to responsible and sustainable capital deployment, in terms of how they can enable such investments in their current responsible investment frameworks. This master class will explore how investors can navigate the ethical, regulatory, and reputational dimensions of defence-related investments while supporting innovation in areas such as cybersecurity, dual-use technologies, and resilient supply chains.

Masterclass 2 - Stream 2

The rise of responsible AI and its implications for governance

AI is transforming the investment landscape, bringing both with innovation and responsibility. This session will explore how responsible AI is reshaping governance and risk in private capital, offering practical insights into managing AI-related risks, while aligning with sustainability goals. It will explore how to integrate responsible AI into investment decisions and governance processes, ensuring that innovation and responsibility are balanced with sustainability and long-term value creation.

Masterclass 2 - Stream 3

Holding the line on DEI: Standing firm amid a shifting global political landscape

As global political dynamics shift, some diversity and inclusion initiatives are facing increased scrutiny. This masterclass will explore how private capital firms can take practical steps to maintain a consistent and credible commitment to inclusion in the face of regulatory uncertainty, cultural pushback, and evolving stakeholder expectations.

Drawing on Diversity VC's work with over 100 funds and insights from its 10-year impact report, the session will focus on the systems and structures that enable firms to move beyond intention to implementation, from hiring and decision-making to governance and culture.

Participants will engage in candid discussion on the risks of regression, the business case for inclusive practices, and the leadership required to build resilient, high-performing organisations in a changing environment.

Meghan Stevenson-Krausz, CEO, Diversity VC
